

I have started building the model. It is in just it's beginning stages, so far I've completed the setup procedure and started the go and helper procedures. Many of them right now are copied from the flocking model, but I'm in the process of changing them to make them unique and useful to my project. I'm trying to figure out how to measure the difference in attitudes based on color, this may be a challenging step.